Getting Started: Setting the Stage for Trick Training Success

Before you dive into teaching your puppy to roll over or play dead, it's crucial to establish a solid foundation. This initial preparation will make the entire trick training process smoother and more enjoyable for both of you. Think of it as laying the groundwork for a happy and productive learning environment.

Understanding Your Puppy's Motivation

Every puppy is an individual, and what motivates one might not excite another. For puppy obedience and trick training, understanding your puppy's primary motivators is key. Generally, dogs are motivated by three main things:

1. Food: High-value treats are usually the go-to for trick training. Think small, soft, and incredibly tasty morsels like cooked chicken, cheese, or special puppy training treats. Experiment to find what makes your puppy's tail wag the fastest!
2. Praise and Affection: While not always enough on their own for complex tricks, enthusiastic verbal praise ("Good boy/girl!") and gentle petting can significantly boost your puppy's enthusiasm.
3. Toys: Some puppies are highly motivated by their favorite toys. A quick game of tug or a fetch session can be a great reward.

Consider using a combination of these rewards. For instance, you might start with a food treat for a successful execution, followed by enthusiastic praise and a quick toy play. This layered approach keeps things exciting and reinforces the positive association with training.

Choosing the Right Time and Place

Consistency is king in dog training, and trick training is no exception. Here's how to optimize your training sessions:

1. Keep Sessions Short and Sweet: Puppies have short attention spans. Aim for training sessions of 5-10 minutes, several times a day. This prevents frustration for both of you and keeps the learning positive.
2. Minimize Distractions: Start in a quiet, familiar environment with minimal distractions. Your living room or a fenced backyard is ideal. As your puppy masters a trick, you can gradually introduce more distracting environments.
3. Timing is Everything: Train when your puppy is awake and alert, but not overly hyper or exhausted. A good time is often after a nap or before a meal when they are eager for rewards.

Essential Training Tools

While you don't need much to get started with puppy training tips, a few items can be incredibly helpful:

1. High-Value Treats: As mentioned, these are non-negotiable. Cut them into tiny, bite-sized pieces.
2. A Clicker (Optional but Recommended): A clicker is a small device that makes a distinct "click" sound. It's used as a marker signal to precisely indicate to your puppy the exact moment they perform the desired behavior. The click "charges" your puppy with the reward that follows, making it a powerful communication tool.

3. A Leash and Collar/Harness: Even indoors, a leash can be useful for guiding your puppy and preventing them from wandering off mid-trick.
4. Patience and Positivity: This is the most important tool! Remember, your puppy is learning. Be encouraging, celebrate small successes, and never punish mistakes.

The Art of Luring and Shaping: Core Trick Training Techniques

Most puppy tricks are taught using two primary methods: luring and shaping. Understanding these techniques will empower you to teach a wide variety of commands and behaviors.

Luring: Guiding Your Puppy into Position

Luring involves using a treat to guide your puppy into performing a specific action or moving into a particular position. It's like creating a visual roadmap for your puppy to follow.

How it works:

1. Hold a treat in your hand, close to your puppy's nose.
2. Move the treat in a way that encourages your puppy to follow it, thus performing the desired movement. For example, to teach 'sit', move the treat slowly upwards and slightly back over their head.
3. As soon as your puppy performs the action (e.g., their rear end touches the ground), mark the behavior with your clicker (if using) and immediately give them the treat and praise.
4. Repeat this process several times.
5. Once your puppy reliably follows the lure, you can start to fade it by making the hand motion without the treat in it.

Luring is excellent for teaching basic obedience cues like 'sit', 'down', and 'come'.

Shaping: Rewarding Incremental Steps

Shaping is a more advanced technique that involves rewarding successive approximations of a desired behavior. You reward your puppy for getting closer and closer to the final trick.

How it works:

1. Break down the trick into very small, achievable steps.
2. Reward your puppy for the very first, smallest step towards the trick.

3. Gradually, only reward them for steps that are closer to the final behavior.
4. For example, to teach 'shake a paw', you might first reward your puppy for looking at their paw, then for lifting it slightly, then for moving it towards your hand, and finally for touching your hand.

Shaping is brilliant for more complex tricks like 'spin' or 'fetch a specific toy' and is a fantastic way to build your puppy's problem-solving skills.

Adding the Verbal Cue (The Command)

Once your puppy is reliably performing the behavior through luring or shaping, you can introduce the verbal cue (the command). Say the word just as your puppy is about to perform the action. This helps them associate the word with the behavior. Gradually, you'll be able to say the word and your puppy will perform the trick without needing the lure.

Fun Tricks to Teach Your Puppy: A Step-by-Step Guide

Now for the fun part! Here are some popular and engaging tricks you can teach your puppy, broken down into easy steps.

1. Sit: The Foundation of Good Behavior

This is usually the first trick puppies learn and is essential for polite manners.

1. Luring: Hold a treat near your puppy's nose.
2. Move the treat slowly upwards and slightly back over their head. As their nose follows the treat, their rear end will naturally lower into a sit.
3. The moment their rear touches the ground, click (if using) and give the treat and praise.
4. Repeat, gradually moving the treat further away from their nose.
5. Once they are sitting reliably with the lure, start saying "Sit" just as their rear begins to lower.
6. Eventually, you can fade the lure entirely, just saying "Sit" and rewarding them when they do.

2. Down: The Relaxed Position

Teaching 'down' is a natural progression from 'sit' and is great for helping your puppy relax.

1. Luring from Sit: Have your puppy sit.
2. Hold a treat at their nose level and slowly lower it to the ground between their paws.
3. Continue to move the treat along the ground away from them. Your puppy should follow, lowering their body into a down position.

4. As soon as their elbows touch the ground, click and reward.
5. Repeat, gradually lowering the treat further away.
6. Add the verbal cue "Down" just as they start to lower themselves.
7. Fade the lure as with 'sit'.

Troubleshooting: Some puppies are hesitant to go down. If yours is, try rewarding any slight lowering of their front end, gradually increasing the criteria.

3. Shake Paw: A Friendly Greeting

This is a classic and always impresses!

1. Luring/Shaping: Have your puppy sit.
2. Hold a treat in your closed fist and present it near your puppy's chest, slightly to the side of one of their paws.
3. Most puppies will instinctively try to paw at your hand to get the treat.
4. The moment they lift their paw, click and open your hand to give them the treat.
5. Repeat, gradually opening your hand more slowly and encouraging them to lift their paw higher.
6. Once they are reliably lifting their paw, present your open palm instead of your fist.
7. Add the verbal cue "Shake" or "Paw" as they lift their paw.

4. Spin: A Dizzying Display of Agility

This is a fun, high-energy trick that's great for puppies who love to move.

1. Luring: Hold a treat at your puppy's nose level.
2. Move the treat in a circular motion around their head, leading them in a circle.
3. As they follow the treat and complete the circle, click and reward.
4. Start with small circles and gradually make them bigger.
5. Once they are consistently spinning with the lure, add the verbal cue "Spin" just as you start the motion.
6. Fade the lure by making the circular hand motion without the treat, rewarding them when they spin.

LSI Keywords: dog trick training, puppy learning, positive reinforcement, reward based training.

5. Play Dead: The Dramatic Finale

This trick takes a little more patience but is a showstopper!

1. Luring from Down: Have your puppy in a 'down' position.
2. Hold a treat at their nose level and slowly lure them to roll onto their side. You might need to gently guide them initially.

3. The moment they are on their side, click and reward.
4. Repeat, rewarding them for holding the position for a few seconds.
5. Gradually increase the time they need to stay on their side before getting the reward.
6. Add the verbal cue "Bang!" or "Play Dead" as they are starting to lie on their side.
7. Fade the lure, using only a hand signal (e.g., pointing a finger like a gun) and the verbal cue.

Troubleshooting Common Puppy Trick Training Challenges

Even with the best intentions, you might encounter some hurdles. Here's how to navigate them:

My Puppy Isn't Interested in Treats

Solution: You might not be using high-value enough treats. Experiment with different types of food. Also, ensure your puppy isn't too full or too tired. Sometimes, a favorite toy can be a better motivator than food.

My Puppy Gets Distracted Easily

Solution: Start in a more controlled environment with fewer distractions. Gradually introduce more stimulating locations as your puppy's focus improves. Keep training sessions very short and engaging.

My Puppy Just Doesn't Seem to Understand

Solution: Break the trick down into even smaller steps. You might be asking for too much too soon. Celebrate every tiny success. Ensure your cues are clear and consistent. Consider if your puppy is physically capable of the trick – some breeds have limitations.

My Puppy Gets Frustrated or Anxious

Solution: End the session on a positive note with a trick they can do. Never force your puppy. If they seem stressed, take a break and try again later. Positive reinforcement is key; frustration can hinder learning.

Beyond the Tricks: The Lasting Benefits of Training

Teaching your puppy tricks is more than just a fun pastime; it's an investment in your relationship and your puppy's well-being. Consistent, positive training helps to:

1. Strengthen Your Bond: Shared learning experiences create a deeper connection and mutual understanding between you and your puppy.

2. Boost Confidence: Successfully learning new things builds your puppy's self-esteem, making them a more confident and well-adjusted dog.
3. Provide Mental Stimulation: Trick training engages your puppy's brain, preventing boredom and potential behavioral issues that can arise from under-stimulation.
4. Improve Communication: You'll learn to better understand your puppy's body language and cues, and they'll learn to understand yours more effectively.
5. Enhance Safety: Essential commands like 'come' are not just tricks but vital safety tools.

So, grab those treats, clear your schedule, and get ready for some serious fun with your furry best friend. The journey of puppy trick training is a rewarding one, filled with wagging tails, happy barks, and countless moments of joy. Happy training!

Training a puppy to perform tricks is far more than a fun pastime—it's a powerful way to build communication, strengthen the bond between pet and owner, and foster a confident, well-adjusted companion. Whether you're a first-time dog parent or expanding your experience, understanding the principles behind effective trick training can transform how you interact with your puppy. This guide explores the essentials of teaching tricks, offering insight into timing, technique, and motivation that lay the foundation for lasting success.

Understanding the Foundation of Puppy Trick Training

Puppies are naturally curious and eager to learn, making early training both achievable and rewarding. At this developmental stage, their minds are like sponges—readily absorbing new behaviors through repetition and positive reinforcement. Trick training isn't just about entertainment; it serves as mental stimulation that prevents boredom, curbs destructive behaviors, and enhances focus. By introducing simple commands such as "sit," "stay," or "shake," owners tap into a puppy's instinct to please, creating a positive feedback loop that encourages continued engagement. The key lies in recognizing that puppies learn best through short, consistent sessions that respect their short attention spans and high energy levels.

Key Insights for Successful Trick Teaching

One of the most critical insights in trick training is the power of timing. A reward must follow the desired behavior within seconds to ensure the puppy connects the action with the positive outcome. Equally important is consistency—using the same verbal cues and hand signals every time helps puppies grasp expectations quickly. Breaking complex tricks into smaller, manageable steps allows for gradual progress, reducing frustration and building confidence. Positive reinforcement, such as treats, praise, or play, reinforces good behavior more effectively than punishment, which can create fear and hinder learning. Additionally, creating a calm, distraction-free environment during training sessions enhances focus and helps puppies concentrate on the task at hand.

Practical Applications and Real-World Benefits

The benefits of teaching puppy tricks extend well beyond the training mat. In everyday life, well-trained puppies are easier to manage—whether it's asking them to “stay” before opening a door, “sit” during meals, or “come” when off-leash. These behaviors improve safety and responsiveness, making outings more enjoyable and secure. Trick training also strengthens the human-animal bond by fostering mutual trust and understanding. Owners who invest time in teaching tricks often notice improved focus, reduced anxiety, and a more balanced temperament in their pets. Beyond companionship, these skills open doors to participation in agility, therapy work, or competitive obedience, offering opportunities for both mental and physical exercise.

Future Outlook: The Evolving Role of Trick Training in Pet Wellbeing

As awareness of animal cognition and emotional needs grows, trick training is evolving from a novelty into a recognized component of responsible pet ownership. Innovations in training tools and methods—such as clicker training, video modeling, and interactive apps—are making learning more engaging and accessible. Veterinary behaviorists increasingly recommend structured mental enrichment as part of holistic care, acknowledging its role in preventing behavioral issues and supporting cognitive health. Looking ahead, trick training will continue to bridge the gap between instinct, learning, and companionship, empowering owners to nurture confident, well-socialized dogs while deepening the emotional connection with their pets. With patience and consistency, every puppy has the potential to master not just tricks, but a lifetime of trust and joy.

Why Train Your Puppy Tricks? More Than Just a Cute Party Trick

The benefits of trick training extend far beyond simple entertainment. It's a vital component of a well-rounded puppy education. Let's explore the key advantages:

Bonding and Communication

One of the most profound benefits of training tricks is the enhanced bond you forge with your puppy. Each training session is a dedicated period of interaction, fostering trust and mutual understanding. Your puppy learns to read your cues, and you learn to interpret their signals, creating a more harmonious relationship. This shared activity strengthens your communication channels, making everyday life smoother and more enjoyable.

Mental Stimulation and Cognitive Development

Puppies are inherently curious and intelligent. Trick training provides crucial mental stimulation, preventing boredom and potential behavioral issues. It challenges their minds, improves their problem-solving skills, and keeps their brains sharp. Just as physical exercise is important for their bodies, mental exercise is vital for their well-being.

Building Confidence and Self-Esteem

Successfully learning a new trick, no matter how simple, gives puppies a sense of accomplishment. This boosts their confidence and self-esteem, making them more adventurous and less prone to anxiety. A confident puppy is a happy puppy, more likely to explore their environment and interact positively with people and other animals.

Improving Focus and Impulse Control

Trick training often requires a puppy to focus on you and their task, even amidst distractions. This practice helps improve their concentration and develops impulse control. Commands like 'stay' or waiting for a cue before performing a trick are excellent exercises in self-regulation.

Foundation for Advanced Training

Many advanced dog sports and activities, such as agility, obedience trials, and scent work, build upon the foundational skills learned during basic and trick training. Mastering simple tricks can pave the way for more complex training endeavors later in your dog's life.

The Foundation of Successful Trick Training: Key Principles

Before diving into specific tricks, understanding the core principles of effective puppy training is paramount. These principles will be your guiding stars throughout the process.

Positive Reinforcement: The Cornerstone of Canine Learning

Positive reinforcement is the most effective and humane method for training any dog, especially puppies. It involves rewarding desired behaviors, making it more likely that the puppy will repeat them. Rewards can include:

1. High-value treats: Small, soft, and incredibly tasty morsels that your puppy loves. Think tiny pieces of chicken, cheese, or specialized training treats.
2. Praise: Enthusiastic verbal affirmation like "Good boy/girl!" or "Yes!"
3. Affection: A gentle scratch or a loving pat.
4. Toys: A quick game of tug or a favorite squeaky toy.

The key is to make the reward immediate, so your puppy associates the behavior with the positive outcome. Avoid punishment, as it can lead to fear, anxiety, and a breakdown in trust.

Timing is Everything: Capturing and Shaping Behavior

Your timing needs to be impeccable. You want to reward the behavior the instant it happens. This is where two crucial training techniques come into play:

1. Capturing: This involves waiting for your puppy to naturally perform a behavior and then immediately rewarding it. For example, if your puppy stretches out on their own, you can capture that moment by saying "Stretch" and offering a treat.
2. Shaping: This is a more advanced technique where you break down a complex behavior into tiny, achievable steps and reward each incremental step. For instance, to teach 'roll over,' you might first reward lying down, then rolling onto their side, then a little further, and so on.

Short, Frequent Sessions: Keeping it Fun and Effective

Puppies have short attention spans. Long, drawn-out training sessions will likely lead to frustration for both of you. Aim for multiple short sessions (5-10 minutes) throughout the day rather than one long one. This keeps training engaging and prevents your puppy from becoming overwhelmed or bored. End each session on a positive note, even if it's with a simple command they already know.

Consistency is Key: Everyone on the Same Page

Ensure that everyone in the household uses the same cues (words and hand signals) and follows the same training methods. Inconsistency can confuse your puppy and slow down their progress. Once a cue is established, stick with it.

Understanding Your Puppy: Reading Body Language

Pay close attention to your puppy's body language. Signs of stress, anxiety, or overstimulation include yawning, lip licking, panting when not hot, or turning their head away. If you notice these signals, take a break or end the session. Conversely, a relaxed puppy with a wagging tail is more receptive to learning.

Getting Started: Essential Equipment and Preparations

Before you embark on your trick-training adventure, a few practical preparations will make the process smoother.

Choosing the Right Treats

As mentioned, high-value treats are crucial. Experiment with different options to discover what your puppy finds most motivating. Small, bite-sized treats are ideal so your puppy doesn't get too full too quickly.

Luring vs. Capturing vs. Shaping

These are the primary methods you'll use:

1. Luring: Using a treat to guide your puppy into a desired position or action. For example, holding a treat near their nose and moving it to guide them to sit.
2. Capturing: As described above, rewarding a behavior that your puppy performs naturally.
3. Shaping: Breaking down complex behaviors into smaller steps and rewarding each progression.

You'll often use a combination of these methods. For instance, you might lure a sit, and then shape a 'down' from that sit.

The Importance of a Clicker (Optional but Recommended)

A clicker is a small device that makes a distinct "click" sound. It serves as a precise marker for the exact moment your puppy performs the desired behavior. The click is followed immediately by a treat. The clicker acts as a bridge, communicating to your puppy, "Yes, that's exactly what I wanted!" This clarity can significantly speed up the learning process and is an excellent tool for shaping behaviors.

Creating a Distraction-Free Environment

Start training in a quiet, familiar environment with minimal distractions. As your puppy progresses, you can gradually introduce more challenging environments with mild distractions to solidify their understanding and generalization of the learned tricks.

Teaching Basic Tricks: The Building Blocks of Fun

Let's start with some fundamental tricks that are perfect for puppies and lay the groundwork for more complex maneuvers.

The "Sit" Command: The Foundation of Obedience

This is often the first command puppies learn. It's simple, useful, and essential for many other tricks.

1. Method (Luring): Hold a treat at your puppy's nose level. Slowly move the treat up and slightly back over their head. As their nose follows the treat, their rear end should naturally lower into a sit.
2. Cue: The moment their rear touches the ground, say "Sit" and immediately click (if using a clicker) and give them the treat and praise.
3. Progression: Gradually reduce the lure, using the hand motion without the treat, then eventually just the verbal cue.

The "Down" Command: The Relaxing Companion

Once your puppy has mastered "sit," teaching "down" is the logical next step.

1. Method (Luring from Sit): With your puppy in a sit, hold a treat at their nose level and slowly lower it to the ground between their paws. Then, slowly drag the treat forward away from them. They should follow the lure into a down position.
2. Cue: As soon as they are in a down position, say "Down," click, and reward.
3. Progression: Fade the lure as with the "sit" command.

"Shake Paw" or "Give Paw": A Friendly Gesture

This trick is always a crowd-pleaser and builds on paw dexterity.

1. Method (Capturing/Luring): While your puppy is sitting, hold a treat in your closed fist near their paw. Most puppies will naturally try to paw at your hand to get the treat.
2. Cue: The moment they lift their paw, say "Shake," click, and open your hand to give them the treat.
3. Progression: Once they reliably paw at your closed fist, start presenting your open palm. Gradually delay the treat delivery.

"Stay": The Art of Patience

This is crucial for safety and control, but also a fun trick to master.

1. Method: Start with your puppy in a sit or down. Hold up your hand in a "stop" gesture and say "Stay." Wait for just one second, then immediately return to your puppy and reward them.
2. Progression: Gradually increase the duration of the stay, then gradually increase the distance you move away. Always return to your puppy to reward them. If they break the stay, calmly guide them back to their original position and try again with a shorter duration or distance.

Moving On to More Advanced Tricks: Expanding Your Repertoire

Once your puppy has a solid grasp of the basics, you can explore more complex and impressive tricks. Remember to keep the principles of positive reinforcement, short sessions, and consistency at the forefront.

"Roll Over": A Dynamic Display

This trick requires coordination and trust.

1. Method (Shaping/Luring): Start with your puppy in a down position. Use a treat to lure them to roll onto their side. Once they are comfortable with that, lure them further onto their back, and then to complete the roll.
2. Cue: As they complete the roll, say "Roll Over," click, and reward.
3. Progression: Break down each stage of the roll and reward small movements in the right direction.

"Play Dead": The Dramatic Performance

This is a fun trick that often builds on the "down" command.

1. Method: From a down position, use a treat to lure your puppy onto their side or back. You might need to gently nudge them.

2. Cue: As they lie in the 'dead' position, say "Bang!" or "Play Dead," click, and reward.
3. Progression: Gradually increase the duration they stay in the position before rewarding.

"Fetch": The Classic Game

Teaching fetch involves encouraging your puppy to retrieve an object and bring it back to you.

1. Method: Start by getting your puppy excited about a toy. Toss it a short distance. When they pick it up, enthusiastically encourage them to come back to you.
2. Cue: As they approach you with the toy, say "Fetch" or "Bring it."
3. Progression: Reward them for bringing it to you and dropping it. You can introduce a "drop it" cue.

"Spin": The Graceful Turn

This trick is great for building body awareness.

1. Method (Luring): Hold a treat at your puppy's nose level and move it in a circular motion around their head, encouraging them to follow and spin.
2. Cue: As they complete the spin, say "Spin," click, and reward.
3. Progression: Gradually make the lure smaller and fade it out, eventually using just the hand signal or verbal cue.

Troubleshooting Common Trick Training Challenges

Even with the best intentions, you might encounter a few bumps along the road. Here's how to address common issues:

Puppy is Not Motivated by Treats

Try different types of high-value treats. Some puppies are more toy-motivated. Experiment with praise and affection as rewards.

Puppy is Easily Distracted

Ensure your training environment is as distraction-free as possible. Gradually introduce mild distractions as your puppy's focus improves. If distractions are too overwhelming, go back to a quieter environment.

Puppy is Frustrated or Anxious

This is a sign that the training is too difficult or too long. End the session on a positive note with a simple command they know. Take a break and try again later. Always keep it fun!

Puppy Doesn't Understand the Cue

Revisit the luring or shaping process. Ensure your cues are clear and consistent. Break the trick down into even smaller steps.

Maintaining Your Puppy's Trick Repertoire

Learning tricks is an ongoing process. To ensure your puppy doesn't forget what they've learned, integrate trick practice into your daily routine. Use tricks as rewards for good behavior, or simply have short, fun practice sessions to keep their skills sharp and your bond strong. Remember, the goal is to have fun and build a deeper connection with your canine companion.

Teaching your puppy tricks is an incredibly rewarding experience. It's a journey of discovery, learning, and unwavering companionship. By applying these principles and techniques, you'll unlock your puppy's full potential, creating a well-behaved, confident, and happy dog who is a joy to live with. So grab some treats, a clicker (if you choose), and get ready for some tail-wagging fun!

Questions & Answers About how to train a puppy tricks

No	Question	Answer
1	What's the first trick I should teach my new puppy?	Start with 'sit'! It's foundational, easy to teach, and a great way to build your puppy's focus on you. Use a small, high-value treat and lure their nose upwards and slightly back over their head while saying 'sit'.
2	How long should training sessions be for a puppy?	Keep them short and sweet! For puppies, 5-10 minutes, a few times a day, is ideal. This prevents frustration and keeps their attention sharp. Always end on a positive note.
3	What's the best way to get my puppy to 'stay'?	Once your puppy masters 'sit' or 'down,' introduce 'stay.' Start with a very short duration and distance. Use a clear hand signal (like an open palm facing them) and the word 'stay.' Reward them for remaining in place before releasing them with a clear release word like 'ok' or 'free'.
4	My puppy gets distracted easily, how can I improve their focus during trick training?	High-value treats are key! Use something extra special they rarely get, like small pieces of chicken or cheese. Practice in a quiet environment initially, and gradually introduce distractions as they improve. Keep training fun and engaging.
5	How do I teach my puppy to 'shake' or 'give paw'?	Gently take your puppy's paw while saying 'shake' or 'paw.' Reward them immediately. If they lift their paw on their own, capture that moment with a treat and praise. Don't force their paw.

6	Is it okay to use treats for every single command?	Initially, yes! Treats are powerful motivators. As your puppy becomes more reliable, you can start phasing out treats for some commands, replacing them with enthusiastic praise and petting. Still, keep treats handy for harder tricks or when you need an extra boost.
7	How can I teach my puppy to 'come' when called?	Make 'come' the most rewarding thing ever! Use an excited tone, get down on their level, and have high-value treats ready. Start in a confined space, call their name followed by 'come,' and reward them generously when they reach you. Never use 'come' for punishment.
8	My puppy bites and chews during training, what should I do?	Redirect their chewing! If they nip, yelp 'ouch' loudly to startle them, then immediately offer an appropriate chew toy. If they grab it, praise them. Ensure they have plenty of chew toys available at all times.
9	When should I start teaching my puppy more complex tricks like 'roll over'?	Once your puppy has a solid understanding of basic commands like 'sit,' 'stay,' and 'down,' you can move on to more advanced tricks. 'Roll over' requires them to be comfortable going onto their side, so ensure they're relaxed in that position first.
